

Drug – Dealing (Beginners’ Course)

by Angel Furlas & John Anastasakis

Characters

Cornelius (Nerd)

Georgie (Dealer)

Summary A nerd trying to buy drugs at an alleyway, the nerd asks out of place questions

Nerd: Black Hawk?

Dealer: Yes. Pamela Anderson?

Nerd: Also yes, although my real name is Cornelius Pot.

Dealer: Ok?

Nerd: So umm...

Dealer: Yes?

Nerd: Umm...

Dealer: Is there something I can do for you?

Nerd: Right, let me um... (Pulls out a small piece of paper.)

Nerd: I need the “white stuff” for my crib bruv, innit?

Dealer: What?

Nerd: Most specifically, a kilo of “flour”, and half a kilo of “sugar”.

Dealer: Are you sure you’re not reading a recipe?

Nerd: Um... yes... It’s pretty clear. “I want the white stuff, nudge nudge wink wink, If he tries to reach something from his pocket then run immediately”.

Dealer: Oh, why didn’t you say it earlier? (Hands him the packets)

Nerd: Oh thank you kind mister. (Leaves nervously)

Dealer: Not so fast.

Nerd: What is the matter?

Dealer: The dough matter, where’s it at?

Nerd: And you said I was the one reading the recipe.

Dealer: Listen kid, I have other people to sell to. Better hurry up or you'll be a goner.

Nerd: Where to?

Dealer: "Hell" (sarcastic).

Nerd: Oh no. No, no, no. I'm a good catholic. I've been properly touched, or physically blessed as pastor John says, I hate black people and on the weekends, if I'm all jolly and up-spirit, I might set fire to a homosexual person or two. Different preferences? Not on my watch.

Dealer: Well, I have to say, I do hope you get addicted (murmuring).

Nerd: Addicted? No... It's not like you sell chocolate hobnobs...
